

Name that Face

Charles Lindbergh

How did Charles Lindbergh change transportation in America?

He was the first to fly an airplane across the Atlantic Ocean, and planes could be used to fly long distances. Also, people realized the possibilities for new trade, better transportation of people and goods, and new business opportunities.

* He proved people could fly long distances.

•*Planes were used for military purposes

Henry Ford

How did Henry Ford change transportation in America?

Henry Ford changed the way cars were made by using an assembly line. He also was able to lower the cost of cars which allowed more people to afford them. As a result, people were able to move around the country at a faster pace.

Louis Armstrong

How did Louis Armstrong change music in America?

Louis Armstrong was a famous jazz musician. He helped changed music in America because he helped make jazz a popular form of music.

He played fast music to slow blues.

Duke Ellington

How did Duke Ellington change music in America?

Duke Ellington was a famous African-American jazz composer and bandleader. He helped changed music in America because he helped make jazz a popular form of music.

Jesse Owens

How did Jesse Owens change sports in America?

Jesse Owens set a record in the 200 meter race and broad jump. He set seven world records in his career. His performance in the Olympic games made him one of the most athletes in America. He showed that African-Americans were capable of great athletic achievements.

Babe Ruth

What impact did baseball and baseball stars like Babe Ruth have on American society?

In 1927 he hit 60 homeruns in one season.

Because of Babe Ruth's popularity, he helped make baseball a very popular sport. Since the radio was a new invention, many people listened to games and their favorite sports heroes. He encouraged kid to play sports. He showed that goals can be reached.

Langston Hughes

How did Langston Hughes bring change to America?

Langston Hughes wrote poems, books, and plays about the lives of African Americans. He was important in bringing about the Harlem Renaissance.

- He wrote about the lives of African-Americans and discrimination.

Margaret Mitchell

- ❖ How did her contributions add to the culture 1920s?
- ❖ She wrote Gone With the Wind
 - From Atlanta, Georgia
 - She made the Civil War popular
 - Very popular book in spite of the Great Depression
 - Over 1 million copies sold in first 6 months of publication
 - Pulitzer Prize winning story

The Jazz Age and the Harlem Renaissance

Jazz Age

- Jazz was a new and different sound showcasing the talents of African-American musicians
- With the passage of the 19th amendment, women were experiencing a new found freedom

New energy and attitude of the youth

- Dance! Dance! Dance!

- Harlem Renaissance: African-American literature and art contributions being celebrated outside of their community
 - The Great Migration-mass movement from the south to the north for job opportunities
 - Better education and employment is creating a political and social voice for the community

Margret Mitchell

How did Margret Mitchell bring change in America?